Washington State is the most competitive location in the U.S. for aerospace design and manufacturing, according to a comprehensive, independent report released in early June by the Choose Washington New Middle-of-the-Market Airplane Council (NMA Council), in which District 751 participates.

DISTRICT 751

The study is part of our union and our state's effort to ensure Boeing's next new aircraft is built here by presenting facts and data to justify such a choice well ahead of any decision the Company makes on a new airplane.

"It was critical that the study be conducted by a leading aerospace consultant who could deliver the most comprehensive, data driven state-bystate aerospace competitiveness study ever done," said District 751 President Jon Holden.

Virginia-based Teal Group, led by Vice President of Analysis Richard Aboulafia and Senior Economist Tom Zoretich, and research firm Olympic Analytics conducted the Aerospace Competitive Economics Study (ACES). The report analyzed the competitive advantages and disadvantages for aerospace manufacturing in all 50 states and D.C. using publicly available data in 41 different categories.

The results of the study show not only that Washington came out on top, but that Washington is far ahead of other states as the most competitive place for large aerospace manufacturing operations (almost twice as good as the number 2 state). According to the report, Washington offers the lowest risk and highest return for Boeing to build its proposed new mid market airplane here.

"The fact that Washington was clearly number one didn't happen by accident. Our manufacturing infrastructure here is successful because of the many stakeholders who have made important investments in our state over the last 100 years," said Holden, who spoke at the press event announcing the study results. "Our first investment to help Boeing was in 1921 when the city of Seattle extended utilities to Boeing's Duwamish plant and built the South Park Bridge to provide better transportation to the plant. Since then, our state has continually invested in this industry, including training programs that continually adapt to new technology and manufacturing processes so we have a workforce prepared to meet any new challenges. In fact, our state has more individuals in aerospace training than most states have working in the aerospace industry." "An important point in this study is how the researchers ranked labor costs. This report looks not just at the basic cost of labor, but the output of that labor," said Holden. "What they found is that machinists and engineers here in Washington are very efficient and productive. We produce more aerospace output per dollar cost of labor than almost anywhere else. # Union Revisions Ensure Mechatronics Job Description Is Confined to Grade 6 Work

As we reported in earlier AeroMechanic papers, our Union has challenged determining duties Boeing initially included in the Mechatronics Maintenance 87706 job classification that we believe were not characteristic of grade 6 jobs. Our goal was to ensure that when Boeing finalized the Mechatronics Maintenance 87706 job classification, it only reflected determining duties of a grade 6 job classification.

In late June, the Company and our Union came to agreement on revisions to the job description to ensure it is a grade 6 job. Initially, the Company presented the Union with a job description that contained elements from the Grade 9 and 10 job descriptions that we felt would have jeopardized those higher-graded positions and led to the erosion of the value of that higher-level work. Using the grievance and arbitration process, the Union engaged the Company in discussions. We convened a group of stewards and union leaders who understood the work and met multiple times over several months. These knowledgeable stewards helped craft our revisions and we prevailed on the Company to remove from the job description all references to the higher graded work.

South Carolina Flight Line Votes Union Yes!

On May 31, Flight Line Readiness Technicians working on Boeing's South Carolina flightline voted overwhelmingly for IAM Union Representation in a 104 to 65 vote.

This group of 176 skilled technicians voted for a voice on the job despite fierce opposition from Boeing, local politicians and their community.

District 751 President Jon Holden (l) talks with Steward Dan Johnson on revisions to the Mechatronics 87706 job description to ensure it does not erode work from the higher labor grades.

It was important for these workers to know that District 751 and our members here in Washington State supported their efforts to gain rights on the job. In recent months, District 751 President Jon Holden asked our Stewards at lodge meetings if they supported efforts of workers in South Carolina to unionize and the resounding applause and hell yes were a strong answer. To reassure those workers that 751 supported them, Holden, along with Chief of Staff Richard Jackson and Grievance Coordinator Dan Swank met with the South Carolina Continued on Page 2

Advocating for Bargaining Rights and Jobs for Our Communities

By JON HOLDEN

IAM 751 District President This past month there were two newsworthy events worth discussing.

First off, I want to congratulate the Flight Line Readiness Technicians working at the Boeing South Carolina plant. The group voted overwhelmingly to have IAM union representation despite intense pressure from Boeing and others. These workers are strong in their convictions and understand that having the right to bargain with their employer will allow them to improve their standard of living for themselves, their families and their communities – much the same way it has for our members and our communities here in Washington State.

Prior to the vote, myself, Richard Jackson and Dan Swank flew to Charleston to meet with these workers and reassure them our membership solidly supports their efforts to gain rights on the job. We do the same work, face the same hazards and work for the same company so we understand the challenges these workers face every day and stand in solidarity with them. We are all trying to raise our families, save a little bit for the future, and carve out a better life in our communities.

After the vote, I participated with union leadership to discuss important strategy moving forward toward a first contract. We need to help those workers stay strong and united during this process of moving toward a first contract.

Boeing has challenged the NLRB election and certification of these Flight Line Readiness Technicians in South Carolina in an effort to delay or deny their federally protected rights. Boeing continues to insist this is not a proper craft unit despite the NLRB ruling that it is. Federal labor law allows the creation of a craft unit for workers who have a community of interest, perform a different statement of work, are geographically separated from others or have different management – this qualifies the group as a craft unit allowing them to vote under NLRB guidelines to determine union representation.

Keep in mind craft units are nothing new. The NLRB has approved of this practice thousands of times since the 1940's. In fact, the NLRB approved hundreds of craft units last year alone.

We encourage Boeing to recognize the IAM, accept that their employees chose to be represented by the IAM and begin fruitful discussion to reach a first agreement. We will continue to encourage that to happen.

As I was able to meet with many of those from the flight line in South Carolina,

I explained that for members represented by District 751 I have been elected by them to be their advocate always. That is our focus and sets our direction in all the activities we perform on behalf of our members.

I emphasized they will depend on their local lodge leaders to support their bargaining unit in South Carolina to serve as their advocate in the same fashion that I support our members. It is important they have confidence that they can count on those leaders to help them raise their standard of living.

On that note, we continue to be an advocate for our members in Washington State with our efforts to land Boeing's next airplane in our state. I reported earlier this year that the Machinists Union and SPEEA had commissioned a study as part of the Choose Washington New Middle of the Market Airplane (NMA) Council.

The study released on June 6 confirms that Washington State ranks first among all states when evaluating aerospace manufacturing infrastructure.

This study is the most comprehensive, data driven study of aerospace competitiveness ever conducted. It looks at all 50 states and the District of Columbia using trusted public data anyone could access so it is very transparent. It was important that someone independent, objective and well respected in the aerospace industry conduct the study, which is why we commissioned Richard Aboulafia and Teal Group. The study wouldn't be credible if it was only the machinists union saying we are number one.

As Aboulafia stated to the media our state is far ahead of even the number two state and "you would have to work really hard on the numbers for Washington State not to come out number one."

We are number one because our state and all the stakeholders have made conscious investments in this industry for more than 100 years – it is a commitment from our elected officials, our community and technical colleges, universities, suppliers, community leaders and every citizen of this state. Our aerospace Continued on Page 8

Flight Line Readiness Technicians before the vote to answer their questions and deliver a message of solidarity and support.

IAM International President Bob Martinez applauded those workers saying, "The South Carolina Flight Readiness Technicians at Boeing have spoken loud and clear. I commend them for the courage and integrity they have demonstrated through this contentious process. I am asking Boeing to respect their freedom to choose and not retaliate against them for expressing their rights. The historic votes cast by the 176 Flight Readiness Technicians are not a collective vote against Boeing; it was a vote for the return of American prosperity. Unions are the best mechanism for protecting the interest of working men and women."

"Our members work at Boeing plants across the country. We are glad to add the South Carolina plant to the list," Martinez added. "I hope Boeing will accept the results and join us in a dialogue about the future of North American industry and the North American worker."

District 751 President Jon Holden, Chief of Staff Richard Jackson and Grievance Coordinator Dan Swank stood in solidarity with the Boeing South Carolina Flight Line Readiness Technicians.

South Carolina to talk strategies and offer support in their efforts to begin moving toward a first contract.

Unfortunately, Boeing continues to resist recognizing the legal rights of these workers and has challenged the election.

Even before the vote, Boeing tried to stop these workers from gaining rights. First, Boeing asked the NLRB to "stay" or postpone the election or as an alternative to "impound" or not count the ballots until their appeal process was completed. The NLRB denied Boeing's appeal on May 30 and the election took place on May 31. Since the vote, Boeing has refused to bargain while their appeal is being reviewed by the NLRB.

"For some reason, Boeing executives are choosing to ignore the wishes of hard-working men and women in South Carolina. Boeing workers in South Carolina have the same rights to freedom at work as every American worker," said IAM Boeing SC Lead Organizer Mike Evans. "We will continue to call on Boeing to treat every worker with respect and join us at the negotiating table to continue our partnership for the betterment of every Boeing employee."

After the vote, Holden again traveled to

Union Revisions Ensure New Mechatronics Job Description Confined to Grade 6 Work

• Removed all references to "troubleshoot," "diagnose," "predictive maintenance," "failure analysis," "analyze," etc. with respect to this particular body of work. All of these duties were in the original draft Boeing presented and have been removed from the description.

• The determining duties now includes a reference to assisting higher classified employees in various maintenance functions, demonstrating an important separation between the lower-graded and higher-graded functions.

Your Union is satisfied that the installed job description, as significantly revised by our proposals, properly reflects only Grade 6 work and therefore preserves and protects the higher level work performed by Grade 9 and Grade 10 employees. To protect against any erosion, it will be important to work together to help ensure that the higher graded work continues to be properly paid at the higher level.

To see the difference between the originally proposed job description and the revised description that has been installed, visit our website www.iam751. org/docs/mechatronics.

"I want to thank all the stewards and members who stepped forward to help provide input so we could ensure the new job classification is truly Grade 6 work and does not lead to erosion of higher graded jobs," said District 751 President Jon Holden.

Nguyen and Glickman Win IAM Scholarship

In June, District 751 had the opportunity to celebrate the achievements of some of our finest students, as our Union presented the 2018 IAM Scholarship to Sarah Nguyen and Abbie Glickman, two children of IAM 751 members.

These impressive young women competed against not only children of IAM members across the nation and Canada, but against IAM members themselves. From among hundreds of entries, only 16 winners were chosen.

The IAM scholarship program honors students who have exceptional academic ability and the heart to make a difference in their communities.

Sarah Nguyen Sarah Nguyen is an ambitious young woman, who exhibits incredible drive. dedication and compassion.

Her mom, Thao Nguyen, works at the Everett plant as an inspector. Thao beamed with pride as Sarah graduated Cascade from High School with multiple awards and scholarships that included the Providence General Children's Scholarship Scholarship.

took a mix of Honors and AP classes maintaining a 4.0 GPA for those classes. In her senior year, she took all running start college classes at Everett Community College and maintained a 3.9 GPA. She has been a leader of her school serving on the Student Council, Class Cabinet, annual MLK Jr Day of Service.

This fall Sarah plans to attend the University of Washington where she will pursue a degree in biology and a career in the medical field.

Abbie Glickman

Abbie Glickman is a standout at her school. In addition, to the IAM Scholarship, she earned the James E. Casey National Merit Scholarship sponsored by The UPS Foundation as a National Merit Commended Scholar, the James R. Hoffa Memorial Scholarship Fund Bootstrap Award, the Teamsters Local 58 Scholarship, as well as two Oregon State University Scholarships: the Wayne & Jule Claire Spesock Memorial > Scholarship and the Finley Academic Excellence Scholarship.

A b b i e consistently pursued the toughest courses taking honors classes starting in 9th grade and AP classes throughout her junior and senior year - all while maintaining a perfect 4.0 GPA and graduating as valedictorian.

Beyond her academic excellence, Abbie has been a leader to others and served on the Link Crew to orientate new students and help them throughout the school year. She volunteered as a Link Coordinator to train other Link Crew Leaders, as well as volunteered as a Peer Tutor to help other students. Abbie also served as a junior coach at youth summer camps helping kids learn to row and at basketball summer camps. She has been a proud member of the National Honor Society throughout high school and helped run school and community events such as food drives and study tables.

together to achieve gains. The current contract has two additional improvements to our dental benefits when the annual maximum benefit increases to $2,500 in the year 2020 and then to $3,000 in the year 2024.

751's Charleston Running for State Senate in the 34th

751 members living in the 34th District have a chance to vote for one of our own: 751-member Lem Charleston is running for State Senator. The 34th District covers West Seattle, White Center, Burien and Vashon Island.

When State Senator Sharon Nelson chose not to run for re-election, Lem decided to enter the race for the open seat stating, "We can do better. We need to progressively move Sharon's legacy to the next level, by doing more in and for our communities."

Lem was born in Seattle and has lived in West Seattle for the past 21 years. He joined Machinists District 751 when he hired into the Boeing Everett plant in 1988. He served as a Union Steward in Everett for 20 years acting as an advocate for members – before transferring to Renton in 2017 for a shorter commute each day.

Lem has served as a minister and pastor since 1992 and is currently serving as a volunteer assistant Seattle Police Department chaplain – a position he has held since 2006. He spent many years as a volunteer soccer coach in the West Seattle Soccer Club, as well. In addition, Lem has been active in the annual MLK Jr Celebration in Seattle.

He is a devoted husband and father, a Marine veteran, a proud union member and a proud activist in his community. Lem's campaign aims to bring years of community leadership, activism, involvement, and diversity to the 34th Legislative District.

"I don't look like a regular politician because I am

In the August Washington State primary election, not a career politician. I have different experiences than some politicians. Right now there are zero African Americans in the State Senate and the 34th Legislative District has never elected a person of color. It's time for realistic diversity," said Lem, in his campaign press release. "We have to work together and not just believe in the creed of this district, but bring that creed to fruition."

"We have traffic problems, classroom overcrowding problems, bike lane sharing problems. We also have one of the highest homelessness rates in the nation. We have obscene housing prices, and the property taxes that go with them. There is gun violence that is leaving our communities with grief, anger, and fear like never before," Lem said. "We can't remedy all these things in one day, but working together, looking at our problems and facing them one by one, for what they are, I am confident we will find a remedy to each and every one of them."

"We encourage our members living in the 34th District to vote for Lem and pay attention that you have the opportunity to vote for a fellow Machinist," said 751 Political Director Larry Brown. "At the Machinists Union, we support our members running for public office. Lem stepped up, and we are proud of him for doing so."

Members living in the 34th District, be sure to vote in the August primary and help elect one of our own to the State Senate by voting for Lem Charleston.

751 member Lem Charleston, who served as a Steward for 20 years, is running for State Senate in the 34th District. Above with his wife Maureen and sons Nigel and Noah outside the Seattle 751 Union Hall. The 34th District covers Burien. White Center, West Seattle and Vashon Island.

$1 paid to workers in Washington's aerospace industry generated $11 in revenue."

At the press conference, Holden also emphasized the unique problem-solving culture of our aerospace workforce in Washington State. "We are never complacent. Even after delivering more than 10,000 737s over the last 50 years, we continue working on ways to improve the capacity and efficiency of the Renton production system. That is a testament to the skills and innovation of the workforce here in Washington," Holden said.

"The unique aspect of our workforce is key. The relationship of the workers in our factories allows us to collaborate and bring any new airplane program to market faster, more cost effective, allowing more profit because we can accelerate the learning curve and in turn create the ability to incorporate any necessary changes in the shortest amount of time resulting in the on-time delivery and entry into service of any new airplane program," Holden added.

According to the study, Washington State produces more revenue, exports and profits than any other state. In 2017, Washington exported more aerospace products and parts than California. Texas, Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, Arizona and Alabama - COMBINED!

Washington has the largest number of aerospace workers, the highest density of aerospace engineers, and the secondhighest density of aerospace production workers.

Washington also has advantages beyond those pertaining to just aerospace, including low energy costs, high port volume, low insurance losses, higher number of patents per capita, considerable private research and development investments and lower taxes.

"Washington has an aerospace supercluster like no other in the country," said Washington Governor Jav Inslee at the press conference announcing the study. "The ACES report Teal Group prepared shows that by any measure, Washington is leading the way by offering the most competitive environment and workforce for companies seeking to build world-class planes."

Inslee added that much of Washington's success in aerospace is because of the stellar 136,000 aerospace workers-many from secondand third-generation aviation families-who call our state home.

"From the 737 to the 787 Dreamliner, we are proud that Boeing's roots are in Washington," Inslee said. "We believe we have all the ingredients necessary to bring the NMA to market quickly

Machinists Volunteers Give Helping Hand to Others

Machinists helping hands were once again visible throughout the region as our members volunteered to help others. In the past month, volunteers built two wheelchair ramps, prepared and served meals at area missions, and helped Northwest Harvest with a food drive at the Seattle Mariners game.

On June 9, volunteers built a wheelchair ramp at the home of a retired veteran in Arlington. He and his family were so grateful, they donated $300 to Guide Dogs of America to show their Volunteers framing the Arlington ramp. appreciation.

Thousands of IAM 751 members and their families turned out for a day of fun and solidarity on Saturday, June 23 for member appreciation fairs at both the Monroe and Puyallup fairgrounds. Each location provided a variety of rides and activities.

The free Machinists Union children's t-shirts and Member t-shirts went quickly as thousands arrived in the morning during cooler weather and shorter ride lines.

The IAM 751 Labor History Committee produced a video and handed out booklets that included a labor history quiz to get members thinking about our rich history and how everything we have today was because of sacrifices past generations made. Completing the quiz entered members to win a $50 Fred Meyer gift card or one of two 55-inch big screen TVs (see list of winners on page 7).

It was a great day of solidarity and family fun for all. Thanks to all who volunteered to help hand out balloons, t-shirts and assist with the quiz.

infrastructure would not be what it is today without the vision of those who came long before us.

A few months back someone said we, as a state, are complacent in regard to aerospace, but that is just not true. The reality is, looking at our history, we have made investments all along the way starting in 1921 when Boeing wanted utilities extended to their Seattle plant and a bridge to help move parts.

We don't take our position for granted and are committed to continue investing for the future.

Another unique part of this study was how the cost of labor was measured - not simply by the cost of wages and benefits, but compared to the value of the output resulting from that labor. The study showed in our state for every $1 in labor, $11 in output was produced. Washington rolled out 714 planes last year alone - 15 times more than our closest competitors - again a testament to the skills and dedication of our workforce.

Finally, we wanted to publicize the study results well ahead of any announcement Boeing makes on a new airplane. Why you ask? It was important for the IAM and all stakeholders to get out in front of any possible decision Boeing might make regarding any new airplane program with a data driven, independent study ranking all aerospace manufacturing hubs in the country. This effort was meant to share transparent information with those having influence on any future decisions.

The unique aspect of the Washington workforce and our willingness problem solve, innovate, remove barriers to increase capability and capacity is at the forefront of our state's success and a direct result of the hard work of generations of Machinists Union members, SPEEA members and other Washington State aerospace workers.

Take a look at the study on our website, ask others to review the study and together we will ensure all the advantages our state has to offer are clear in the minds of the decision makers at Boeing.

Flight for Sight Fun Run Raises Thousands for Guide Dogs

On June 2, 70 runners and walkers took part in this year's Flight for Sight Fun Run, which generated more than $5,100 for Guide Dogs of America.

Participants could enter a timed 5K or 10K race or take part in a non-timed one mile walk. Special thanks to the Silver Striders (a 50 and over running club) that brought more than a dozen members from their club to the event.

Top fundraisers for Guide Dogs were impressive with Myron Phillips donating $1,000 and John Lins-Morstadt also donating $1,000 from his mother's estate because she loved Guide Dogs. Marysville-Getchell High School Senior Nathan Clements brought in $195. Just as impressive Nathan has ran a 5K charity race every month of high school from his freshman year supporting 34 charities and raising over $5,500 while running more than 2,000 miles. Trish Hruby, a long time fun run supporter, took third in fundraising while Theresa Langlois was the fourth highest fund raiser.

"We had a good group of runners and some great volunteers and sponsors," said IAM 751 Women's Committee Chair Terri Myette. "Thanks to all of them, it was a great day."

751 Retirement Club June Business Meeting Minutes

The meeting was called to order on June 11 by President Jackie Boschok and she led the club in the flag salute and God Bless America and T.J. Seibert led the Lord's Prayer.

Roll Call: All officers were present. Minutes: The May meeting minutes were approved. Executive Board: No report

Financial Report: Tom Lux gave the report for the month of May. The Financial Report was M/S/P.

Legislative Report: Carl Schwartz reported that the new Medicare ID cards are being mailed out this month with an information slip included. There is no fee or charge involved and no change in benefits. The new cards with an ID number different than your Social Security number are meant to protect your identity. Jackie Boschok added you can keep the new cards with you because they won't include your Social Security number.

President Trump has issued three new executive orders attacking labor unions that represent government employees, taking away long established procedures and rights. It is a real demonstration of his anti-worker bias.

Republican members of a federal board voted 3 to 2 to refuse to rule that financial advisors put client's interests ahead of their personal gain. This is another example of the very real importance of our need to keep politically aware. May 30 our Alliance held a said she, Ron McGaha, and Michael Keller attended the Western Territory Conference. Ron and Michael briefly reported on the conference. Michael attended a meeting with about 20 other retirees and discussed ways to increase participation in retirement clubs

Ron said local lodge officers, in addition to staff, were invited to the conference. He spoke about the importance of organizing and political action. There is a decline in union membership in our state and across the country. Right to Work states have low union membership numbers and also are pro-Trump. He has created a Political Action Committee to try to get younger union members involved in the political process. We are too old to run and many in office are already 65 or older. He wants to pass the torch to the younger generation. Contact him if you are interested in learning more.

Jackie mentioned that Western Territory GVP Gary Allen invited retirees to the conference because there was not going to be a separate retiree conference this year. She appreciated that retirees were included.

Jackie noted the Supreme Court will rule soon on the Janus vs. AFSCME case which is an attack on unions. Right now it would only affect public employee unions but it could eventually affect private company unions as well. The ruling will be announced in June so check "The Stand" to find out about what actions to take when the ruling is announced. It could be a rally or an email campaign.

Jackie announced the club outing this summer will be a boat tour of Diablo Lake on Thursday, August 23. Cost is $40 per person for those 65 and older. 20 seats on the boat have been reserved, but we can request more if needed. It holds 45. Lunch is included. Transportation will be provided in the union van leaving at 7 a.m. Meet at the Seattle Union Hall for a continental breakfast at 6:30 a.m. We expect to return between 5:30 and 6 p.m. The tour is not wheelchair accessible. June Birthdays & Anniversaries: Tom Lux and Ron McGaha celebrated their birthdays. Jim and Betty Hutchins and Carl and Wilda Schwartz celebrated their anniversary. The club sang happy birthday to them.

The Fred Meyer gift card was won by T.J. Seibert. Meeting adjourned at 11:40 p.m.

Retirees Focus on Union Power

Periodically reviewing your investments to ensure they are on the right track is an important and meaningful measure in working toward your financial goals. Here is a simple but valuable way to get more from your investment strategy. When your next brokerage statement arrives, check your account profile to make sure that all the sections are accurate and up to date. This includes your investment objective, risk tolerance, and time horizon.

Investment objective. Focusing on your investment objectives helps us align the other parts of your investment strategy - risk tolerance, time horizon, and liquidity needs - appropriately. Our asset allocation models are grouped three overarching portfolio within orientations:

Income: Portfolios that emphasize income current with minimal consideration for capital appreciation. They usually have less exposure to historically more volatile growth assets.

Growth and Income: Portfolios that emphasize a blend of current income and capital appreciation. They usually have some exposure to historically more volatile growth assets.

Growth: Portfolios that emphasize capital appreciation with minimal consideration for current income. They usually have significant exposure to historically more volatile growth assets.

Risk tolerance. Everyone is different when it comes to factoring risk into their investment strategy. Each investment objective can be tilted toward assets that tend to be more or less volatile. Risk tolerance is the amount of risk you're willing and able to accept in order to help achieve your financial goals. Risk tolerance should be viewed along the following continuum:

Conservative investors accept the lowest amount of risk.

Moderate investors seek a balance between stability and appreciation in their portfolio.

Aggressive investors accept a higher risk for losses while seeking greater potential for returns.

Time horizon. How long do you plan to invest before you'll need the money? The answer, of course, depends on your stage in life and your goals. Your time horizon is the expected number of months, years, or decades you plan to invest toward your financial goals.Time horizon is generally expressed as:

Immediate - Less than 1 year Short-term -1 to 3 years

Intermediate -3 to 5 years Moderate -5 to 10 years Long-term – More than 10 years

When checking your portfolio's alignment, it's also a good idea to make sure you've accounted for your liquidity needs. Liquidity measures the ease with which you can meet financial obligations with your available liquid assets. For reference, cash is the most liquid asset, while real estate, fine art, and collectibles are all relatively liquid. Liquidity needs include:

Significant (primary need is liquidity) Moderate (may need quick access to cash)

None (have other sources of cash) When building your portfolio, it can WEALTH MANAGEMENT GROUP

Penske Members Vote to Allow Talks

IAM members working at Penske used the Membership Bill of Rights to vote and approve opening their contract recently.

Penske Corporation contacted the IAM and requested to open up specific articles of the contract covering Machinists Union members working at Penske. The company made the decision to exercise its option of withdrawal liability through the IAM Automotive Machinists decision to exercise its Penske Corporation Negotiators (two on far left) meet with IAM Union option of withdrawal Negotiators representing Spokane and Seattle locations after members voted to liability through the IAM approve starting talks at the request of the company.

Pension. This decision to exit the Pension Fund may result in an alternative retirement option for employees currently in the trust. The Fund has been in critical status since the recession of 2009.

However, in order for our union to meet with Penske and even discuss the issue, we first needed to let members covered by the contract vote and decide whether or not to begin talks for opening the contract. This is an IAM Constitutional requirement in Article XX - Membership Bill of Rights that requires a vote of the membership to open a contract, as well as a vote of the membership to determine if a contract is accepted at the conclusion of any negotiations. District 751 members to the 2016 Grand Lodge Convention were instrumental in introducing and pushing for passage of this Membership Bill of Rights.

Local 86 members voted to approve opening the Penske contract and IAM leaders met with Penske negotiators for several days in June. The results of those meetings and proposal will be discussed at a membership meeting on Sunday, July 15 at 10 a.m. at the Spokane Union Hall. After discussion and a question and answer session, members will then vote on whether or not to accept the Company's offer.

Union Steward Nate Hartel counts the ballots asking members whether or not to open the contract for machinists working at Penske.

The Local 86 Trap Shoot will be Saturday, August 25. The event raises money for Guide Dogs of America.

Trap Shoot for Guide Dogs Will be a Blast - Aug. 25

Local 86 in Spokane will hold its sixth-annual charity trap shoot on Aug. 25 at the Spokane Gun Club (19615 E. Sprague Ave, Greenacres, WA).

Registration starts at 9 a.m. The cost is $80 per person, which includes lunch, trophies and door prizes. Optional gun rental available.

There will be additional drawings for prizes including a shotgun, pontoon boat, barbecue smoker and tool packages. Raffle tickets sold separately from officers and at the hall. Need not be present to win.

To register, call the Spokane Union Hall at (509) 534-9690 or e-mail aeveland28@msn.com or call 509-953-9246.

Last year's event attracted 100 shooters.

At the June 6 Local 1123 meeting in Grand Coulee, Eastern Washington raffle winners were drawn as officers and members watched.

Raffle Is a Winning Ticket for Guide Dogs of America

Eastern Washington Machinists raised $6,835 with their annual charity raffle. Stewards and Officers throughout Eastern Washington sold tickets and the drawing of winning tickets rotates each year between the three local lodges. This year's winning tickets were drawn at the Local 1123 meeting in Grand Coulee on June 6 (see box for winners at right and a complete list of all 23 winners on the IAM Eastern Washington Facebook page). This is one of the many fundraisers Eastern Washington locals hold to raise money for Guide Dogs.
